

Present Perfect

We use the present perfect tense:

For something an action in past with a result now:

Michael has forgotten how to be a kid.

For something that started in the past and continues in the present:

Mary Poppins has returned.

Structure

Affirmative sentences:

Mary Poppins has come to look after Banks children.

Negative sentences:

Mary Poppins has not come to look after Banks children

Questions:

Has Mary Poppins come to look after Banks children?
Yes, she has.

Have not = haven't / Has not = hasn't

Contracted form

I have	I've
You have	You've
She has	She's
He has	He's
It has	It's
We have	We've
They have	They've