

Simple Past

The simple past is a tense that is used to talk about things that happened or existed before now. It is expressed by words (verbs) which are written differently (from its infinitive form) to indicate past.

There are two types of verbs

1. REGULAR VERBS are those words which need just an ending

To change a regular verb into its past tense form, we normally add -ED to the end of the verb.

INFINITIVE	PAST
play	played
kill	killed
electrocute	electrocuted
leap	leaped

For example: You electrocuted a bus and almost killed these people.

2. IRREGULAR VERBS are those words which its form changes completely.

INFINITIVE	PAST
Am-is-are	Was-were
Go	went
Do	did
Catch	Caught

For example: You literally did the opposite
